Stefanie Mockler joined the firm as a Research Associate/Intern in early 2013 to pursue her interest and cultivate her skills in the field of leadership assessment and development. She has a strong research background and as such, uses a scientific approach when problem-solving and providing recommendations. She has experience in designing, validating, and conducting assessment for leadership selection, development, and succession planning. In addition, she has been involved in 360 assessment and executive coaching engagements, board evaluations, and High Performance Team appraisals.

Stefanie earned a Bachelor of Science in Psychology at Indiana University and is currently working toward her Ph.D. in Industrial/Organizational Psychology at DePaul University in Chicago, IL. As a researcher, she has a passion for examining the ways in which individuals, and in particular women, can strive to achieve their desired work/life balance while succeeding in leadership positions. She has presented at various conferences and is currently working on several projects to be submitted for publication.

In the pursuit of her own work/life balance, Stefanie enjoys spending time with her family, hiking at the Indiana Dunes, and volunteering with local animal shelters and rescue organizations.

“A leader takes people where they want to go.
A great leader takes people where they don’t necessarily want to go, but ought to be.”
